Synopsis

In The Clash, a group of music fans from diverse subcultures converge on a hall, each armed with flyers advertising different events. The punks, disco lovers, rockers, and funk enthusiasts all arrive expecting their favourite bands, but a scheduling mix-up leads to a hilarious clash of styles, egos, and dance moves.

With debates escalating over which genre reigns supreme, the eclectic crowd agrees on a dance-off to settle the matter. Just as tensions peak, the booking manager reveals the true act for the night, leaving everyone united in disappointment. Filled with witty banter and infectious energy, The Clash is a vibrant celebration of the era's musical diversity and the chaos of a good party.

The Clash also forms part of the narrative of another of our scripts, Goodbye Cherrington Hall, for those who are looking for a larger, longer production.

Have fun with it!

This is going to be the best night ever!

PHIE PHIE

I can't wait to see all the bands

TAMMY

How did they manage to get everyone here at the same time?

ALEXIE

I don't care, I just want to see Blondie,
I hear Debbie Harry is even better live
then on vinyl

TAMMY

Where is everyone? Phie Phie are you sure this is the right place?

PHIE PHIE

That's what it says on the flyer, we are early

Enter CARLY and NANCY, they are dressed in disco attire

ALEXIE

And who are you?

NANCY

I didn't realise trolls could talk

TAMMY

What did you just call us?

CARLY

Why are you lot here? Or have you suddenly discovered some taste in music

PHIE PHIE

No we haven't

Carly and Nancy begin to laugh

NANCY

Listen this is a disco night not a vampire's funeral

CARLY

I'm sure if you want to worship Satan
there's a cemetery near by

ALEXIE

You really are as dumb as you look

NANCY

That's the pot calling the kettle black

The Rockers enter, MAY, NAT, TASH

MAY

What are you bunch of losers doing here?

TASH

I thought this was meant to be a rock concert not a day care centre for babies

CARLY

You're a baby

NAT

Ha, lame! Now why don't you leave before we throw you out

Enter TAYLOR and SAMMY

TAYLOR

Was not expecting this crowd, but I'm not one to judge, funk...

Taylor does a little jig

SAMMY

And soul...

Sammy does a little jig also

SAMMY

It's catchier than the chickenpox

TAYLOR

Don't worry guys, we can teach you all the moves...

SAMMY

And all the grooves
